

the desert, when they saw a lion and a lioness. It was clear that St. Mark and his father were going to die. St. Mark prayed to Christ saying, “Oh Christ, Son of God, protect us from the evil of these two beasts!” Immediately, God answered his prayer and killed the lions. His father was amazed and believed in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The other reason that a lion is drawn next to him is because St. Mark’s Holy Gospel begins by saying, “The voice of one crying in the wilderness” (Mark 1:3), just as a lion roaring in the wilderness. Also, in the Holy Book of Revelation 5:5, Jesus is said to be the “Lion of the tribe of Judah.”
